BEN WEBSTER HEARD FROM IN THE LONE STAR STATE

Man Who Was Wined and Dined by Pensacolians Riding in Private Car.

POSING AS SIR THOMAS LIPTON, HE INTERESTED MERCHANTS OF ABILENE, TEXAS, IN A $300,000 CONCERN, WAS TREATED AS HE WAS IN PENSACOLA, AND THEN DISAPPEARED.

Ben Webster must be in Texas. No one but Ben could have accomplished what a stranger did in Abilene recently. It sounds just like the "wealthy westerner," who was so royally entertained by Pensacolians during a recent visit. The following special from Abilene to the New York Herald tells of the exploits of a stranger there:

Visions of a stream of gold pouring into this part of Texas from British coffers, a dream of an empire directed by one man, where Utopian social experiences would be carried out, with one hundred thousand acres set apart for tea culture and packing industries, faded today with the sudden departure of "Sir Thomas Lipton, Baronet, of Aberdeen, England." His exit and subsequent investigations reveal that one of the boldest impersonators has been laying wires for one of the biggest swindles in the history of the state.

His plan, in brief, was to buy up all the western part of Texas and colonize it with English yeomanry. The deal involved $3,000,000. "Sir Thomas" gave it out that he was backed in his plan by C. W. Post, a well known manufacturer of Battle Creek, Mich.

The entrance of "Sir Thomas," suave and with a rich Irish brogue, and his departure have mystified the prominent citizens of several counties. Incidentally a private car, chartered by the man, is on a Texas and Pacific siding here, well stocked with champagne and choice steaks on ice, awaiting an occupant.

Now that the fact that this "Sir

Thomas" is an impostor is established, bankers, business men, railroad officials and land speculators are wondering how they were deceived and are computing the money paid out on his lavish promises of financial reward.

Saturday morning a tall, well dressed stranger, whose moustache fairly bristled with business, left his private car and registered at the Windsor Hotel, Abilene, which has outlived several boom experiences, rubbed its eyes and welcomed the stranger. "Sir Thomas" got along splendidly with all he met.

When leading citizens, interested in the news that they were entertaining a nobleman unawares, clamored for an introduction to him, "Sir Thomas" sent down word that he was not receiving visitors, but later he would see them and interest them in his plan of putting Abilene on an equal footing with Chicago in the matter of beef packing plants and other industries. Later he conferred with many business men singly. All refuse to tell their experiences with him today.

He left Abilene for Post City after his first day's stay here. At Post City he was more communicative, and announced without reserve his intention to go in with C. W. Post and purchase the whole of Garza county to include in his tract. He explained that he and Mr. Post were closely associated in business and that both were members of a syndicate that was composed largely of British nobility. Millions were to be spent in developing the country.

He talked glibly of the people he had met at Dallas, Fort Worth and other Texas cities. He represented himself to be a friend of H. Clay Pierce, whom, he said, had entertained him on his steam yacht in New York and Boston two years ago.

Two business men became suspicious and went to Post City to investigate. When they reached that town they found that the supposed baronet stories did not tally, and after a conference with Post City bankers they decided to return to Abilene and have a heart to heart talk with the prospective owner of all the western half of Texas.

When they reached Abilene "Sir Thomas" was gone, evidently having got wind of their plan. On a siding stood his private car, freshly stocked the day before for a trip of inspection across the state on which he had

A motion for a new trial in the case of Mrs. Johnnie Hall vs. the Louisville & Nashville Railroad was filed in the United States court yesterday by Blount & Blount & Carter, representing the defendant in the proceedings, and the motion will probably be argued within a short time before Judge Hundley, who presided when the case was decided.

The case was tried during the past week and resulted in a judgment in favor of Mrs. Hall for $12,500, on account of the death of her husband two years ago, who was in the employ of the road.

FAMILY OF FOUR WAS PENNILESS

ADJ. GRIMSHAW, OF THE SALVATION ARMY, TAKES CHARGE OF JACKSONVILLE WOOD CARVER, WHOM HE FINDS IN A SORRY FLIGHT.

In search of work, penniless, and many miles from home, and moreover accompanied by a helpless wife and children, was the plight in which a wood carver from Jacksonville found himself in Pensacola the other night, having finally been provided with a night's lodging for himself and family by the Salvation Army.

The story the man told was a pitiful one. Upon the promise of steady employment in Pensacola, he had taken his family to the scene of his new laid hopes, with the intention of settling permanently in the city. Upon his arrival here, he found it impossible to secure the work for which he was fitted, and after remaining here for several days, his scanty means were exhausted.

Absolutely without money, shelter or food, the little family, scantily but neatly clad, faced the proposition of remaining out of doors all night, an appeal to the Salvation Army, however, resulting in their being comfortably located in a local hotel for the night. On the following day they were provided with funds with which to return to Jacksonville. The family left yesterday on the afternoon train.
